

MURSION®

Mursion Inc. offers both students and professionals cutting-edge, simulation-based training opportunities for mastering the skills necessary to excel within their field. This revolutionary experience takes place in a mixed-reality virtual simulator helmed by an Interactor.

An Interactor possesses a multi-faceted and unique skill set including:

- Performing experience (acting, improvisation, standardized patient and/or role-playing)
- The innate ability to listen and respond with sincerity, empathy, and emotional honesty
- The ability to match and maintain distinct, realistic voices
- The capacity to both understand and honestly portray vastly different psychological profiles
- A mastery of their actor's instrument: voice, body, and imagination
- Knowledge of pop culture
- The ability to present a youthful essence and matching age-appropriate content
- Comfort with basic computer skills
- Experience with (or interest in learning) gaming technology

The training schedule for this project is projected to be a two week window in November or early December. Final dates and times will be locked down at least 2 weeks prior to the start of training.

Once trained, interactors will work approximately 10-15 hours per week. The projected schedule for shifts would be Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons and Tuesday and Friday mornings.

All training and subsequent work is compensated at $20/hour and will take place at
University of Mississippi, Oxford Campus
Department of Teacher Education
Guyton Hall
49 Guyton Dr.

Auditions will be held in early November via remote video conferencing.
